Merry Christmas!

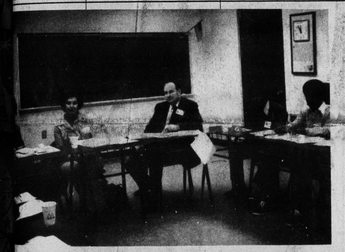
tilizer Needs Stressed

ley at a hearing ed by the Federal mission in Washing- S. Mason Carbaugh, e Commissioner of ure and Commerce the importance of atural gas being made manufacture nitro- er to meet the needs producing food and ginia.

aring studying the ds of Farmers ociation at Tunis, ginia which supplies at least 40 per cent of Virginia's nitrogen needs, the Commission said, "If nitrogen fertilizers are not available to the farmers in Virginia, crop yields would be reduced drastically aggravating the food shortage as well as leading to inefficient production with severe economic repercussions. In many instances, farmers would reduce planting in line with the available supply of nitrogen with the same consequences."

"Nitrogen," he said, "is the most important single plant food required for maximum and efficient crop production. Annual applications are required for most crops, since nitrogen is not readily stored in the soil as are other major plant foods."

The Commission also pointed out that "last year (fiscal year ending June, 1974) few farmers were able to purchase nitrogen in quantities sufficient to meet their requirements. This year due to lower beginning inventories, no additional sources of supply, and anticipated increased acreages, the shortage will be more severe."



CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

May hearts be filled with faith. To good friends, patrons, our appreciation.

Producers Realizing Goals

The Piedmont Pork Producers Association is helping Appomattox County pork growers realize goals they established when the organization was founded more than two years ago.

The brain child of Buckingham County Extension Agent Gordon Baldwin, the association includes the counties of Amelia, Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Fluvanna, Goochland, Lunenburg, Nottoway, Powhatan and Prince Edward.

When the association was established in August of 1972 the Board of Directors set a number of goals which included promotion of consumption of pork, improving marketing opportunities for swine producers, providing educational opportunities for growers and an exchange of views among producers.

Members of the Board of Directors from Appomattox County are John Wilson of Appomattox and Earl Pickett of Pamplin. Wilson explains how the association, and its affiliate, the Perkettes, have helped promote pork consumption.

"We have a Miss Virginia Pork Queen," Wilson says, "She visits supermarkets and talks with customers about pork products hands out recipes, and is generally a goodwill ambassador for all the pork growers in the state. This year's Miss Pork is Nancy Barlow of Madison College."

Promoting Pork Products

Miss Virginia Pork Queen, 1974 (Miss Nancy Barlow of Madison College) makes an appearance at an area supermarket in an effort to promote pork products. Miss Barlow 's personal appearances are part of the promotion policies of the Piedmont Pork Producers Association. Child with Miss Barlow is unidentified.

Community Cross Section Represented

ross section of Appomattox County was represented at the Central Virginia Tomorrow held at Appomattox County High School Thursday. Participating in one discussion were, les. Florence Trent, Mrs. John McLean, group leader Richard Carter, C. B. Goldman Wyss.

VT Workshops Furnish limpse Of The Future

ntral Virginia Tomor- hops held at Appo- unty High School furnished a glimpse e as young and old, ol, white, poor and and farmers and men began working to make Appomattox better place to live.

pose of the work- to identify problems al problems which the social, educational or economic development of the community.

Future workshops will be conducted in an effort to approach problem areas with orderly plans to solve or eliminate them.

More than 35 people participated in the workshops. Discusion leaders for the groups were Tommy Mathews, Virginia Babcock and Richard Carter. A number of community leaders took an active part in the discussions including Appomattox Mayor Henry Pack, Chairman of the Appomattox County Board of Supervisors John Cole, Appomattox Division Superintendent of Schools Lloyd Walton and Town Manager Bill Slagle.

The various groups began discussion with desultory comments, but within a matter of minutes fixed ideas as to the direction to be taken were formed, and a great deal of progress realized before the summaries were presented to the entire group.

Although evaluation of the workshops has not been completed, the original consensus was that effective communications among the residents of the county would be the first step in solving any problem which exists or may exist in the future.

Normal Publication Resumes

The Times-Virginian will resume normal Thursday publication January 2, 1975.

The publishers and staff of the Times-Virginian take this opportunity to wish all our readers a very joyous holiday season, and particularly a prosperous 1975.

We also remind our readers to look for progressive changes in Appomattox County in the coming year. Next week we will include a section on 1974 In Review, and 1975 - A Prospectus.

County Office Building Dedicated

The new county office building was dedicated Friday afternoon in the court room of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court. Jim Smith, left, acted as Master of Ceremonies for the occasion with Chairman of the Appomattox County Board of Supervisors, John Cole, center, and Roland Murphy, an official of the J&D Court participating in the ceremonies.

Christmas Greetings Appomattox County Citizens

easons our friends nd, Darkleaf a n d are not sending cards this Christmas, sentiments are the always and we are in appreciation of m friends, old and 'll try to say it,

'Christmas ywhere, everywhere; es in the New Year, too.

e cursed here's our prayer,

Y ou find rewards reserved for you.

C ome on, youthful '75,

H eap the plate, we will not fear;

R eserve some deep, abiding faith,

I n spite of all the gloom you hear.

S top to aid some friend in need,

T o tide them over troubles near.

M ay your family, home, all you possess,

A lways bring you Happiness,

S tay Alive, Drive Safely in '75.

As a senior citizen I am willing to yield to youth. If a White Christmas will make young people happy with snowmen, snowballing, sleigh riding, so mout it be and no protest from Martha Street.

The first day of Winter, Dec. 22. Note: there will not be another "Friday, the thirteenth" until June, '75. Further note: free calendars with large letters are harder to come by now. I asked about it and the answer is the same we hear every day: inflation.
